Regulate the Liver and prevent CHILLS AND FEVER, MALARIOUS FEVERS, BOWEL COMPLAINTS, RESTLESSNESS, JAUNDICE AND NAUSEA.

SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

Bad Breath!

Nothing is so unpleasant, nothing so common as bad breath, and in nearly every case it comes from the stomach, and can be so easily corrected if you will take Simmons Liver Regulator. Do not neglect so sure a remedy for this repulsive disorder. It will also improve your Appetite, Complexion and General Health.

Piles!

How many suffer torture day after day, making life a burden and robbing existence of all pleasure, owing to the secret suffering from Piles. Yet relief is ready to the hand of almost any one who will use systematically the remedy that has permanently cured thousands. Simmons Liver Regulator is no drastic violent purge, but a gentle assistant to nature.

Constipation!

Should not be regarded as a trifling ailment—in fact nature demands the utmost regularity of the bowels, and any deviation from this demand paves the way often to serious danger. It is quite as necessary to remove impure accumulations from the bowels as it is to eat or sleep, and no health can be expected where a costive habit of body prevails.

Sick Headache!

This distressing affliction occurs most frequently. The disturbance of the stomach, arising from the imperfectly digested contents, causes a severe pain in the head, accompanied with disagreeable nausea, and this constitutes what is popularly known as Sick Headache, for the relief of which, Take Simmons Liver Regulator or Medicine.

[For the COLUMBIAN.]

THE GRAVE IN THE WEST.

BY JOHN H. SUTTON.

When morning awakens my usual devotions,
And duty to labor is called for the day,
My heart is oppressed with its painful emotions,
And my thoughts uncontrolled, go stealing away.
I think of the home, where the dear ones are weeping,
Like Rachel of old, who refused to be blest;
Alone in their sorrow their vigils are keeping,
Because of that newly made grave in the west.

All day while at labor, I'm constantly thinking,
How bitter the cup, that is pressed to our lips,
And yet my heart craves from the cup to be drinking,
As though there was sweet in the gall that it sips.
I turn from the graves that are round me, and near me
Where the dust of our loved ones has long been at rest,
I turn from the living, yet left to revere me,
Away to that grave in the far distant West.

At night, when I ought to be quietly sleeping,
And gathering strength for the day that's to come,
I find myself wakeful and silently weeping,
For those in their desolate and desolate home.
The lesson of patience I ought to be learning,
I fully believe that it's all for the best,
And yet in my weakness, my heart will be yearning,
For him that lies low, in that grave in the West.

Alas! how uncertain are human arrangements,
Our wisdom and prudence may little avail,
Our plans for the future are full of derangements,
And our best calculations oft utterly fail.
Of his cherished design for earthly enhancement
This progress already had given a test,
Our hopes for his mental and moral advancement,
Are buried, alike, in that grave in the West.

The marble may show where his ashes are resting,
And flowers be planted with love's pure intent
But the acts of his life always true to their testings
Engraved on our hearts are his best monument.
As long as my reason and memory are left me
And may they continue,—and grant the request,
Till God in his pleasure, my life hath bereft me
I'll think of that grave in the far distant West.

Nor do I believe that we're parted forever,
Though Jordan's dark currents are rolling between,
The ties formed in Jesus, death never can sever,
And the fields over Jordan will always be green,
In that land of bright promise, I hope soon to meet him,
And a host of dear friends in the home of the blest,
With songs that are perfect, I'm hoping to greet him,
And think never more of that grave in the West.

STILLWATER, Oct. 12, 1880.

Select Story.

TAKEN BY STORM.

'Mademoiselle, we are obliged to ask your hospitality. Believe me, we will encroach upon it as little as possible.'

The speaker, a young Prussian officer in full uniform, bent low before the beautiful girl whom he addressed.

But Maria Moreau saw neither the courtly grace of manner nor noted the young, handsome face and form. She only knew that the enemy of her country stood before her, that the tri-color of France had been dragged from its standard where it floated protectingly over the the little French town, and the hated banner of Prussia put in its stead; that the very privacy of their hearths and homes had been intruded upon—in many instances ruthlessly—and that the man before her was but a representative of all that disaster entailed.

'Sir,' she answered, her lip curling in undisguised scorn as she spoke, 'we are women, and defenseless. It fits you well that you should make a pretense of asking through courtesy, that which you have already obtained through force. The only request we can make of our guests'—emphasizing the latter word with supreme irony—'is that we may be permitted to see as little of them as possible. Unless your regretful consideration demands all the house, leave us any portion, however small, that shall be ours, not only in word but in deed.'

'Mademoiselle, your wishes are commands,' answered the young officer, though a flush had risen to his cheek at her hot words of scorn. 'My advice to you would be to take the upper floor, where there would be no excuse of intrusion upon you. I wish most earnestly that I might withdraw my men from the house, but it is impossible. The town is small and the troops are many. They are quartered everywhere, and, even should I withdraw them, you might be subjected to fresh annoyance, from which it shall be my earnest endeavor to shield you. Permit me, mademoiselle, to hand you my card, and to beg you to command my services, and to report to me any incivility which you may encounter.'

So speaking, he placed on the table beside her a slip of pasteboard, and making a low bow withdrew.

The girl made no motion toward it, not even bending the haughty little head in recognition of his courtesy.

'Really, Maria,' said her aunt, streching out her hand for the card, 'the young man was very polite. It would have been policy, my dear, had your manner not been so repellant.'

'Repellant!' exclaimed the young girl, rising from her seat in her excitement, and pacing up and down the room. 'I wish I could have crushed him with my scorn. Does he not know that a true French woman will bear any insult rather than the humiliation of Prussian magnanimity? I hate him! I hate them all! How shall I ever draw a free breath, knowing that they live on the same air that sustains me! Ah! France, be patient, it is but for a little longer.'

'Hugh Von Treuck,' read the elder lady aloud from the card. 'We must not lose this. The young man may really be of future service to us.'

'Aunt, how can you? Give me the card, or tear it up yourself. Do you think I would ask a favor at his hands—aye, or accept one? Never, never!' and the bright eyes flashed.

But madam quietly slipped the piece of pasteboard within the reticule she wore at her belt, determining, if necessary, to take the young officer at his word.

'Madame will pardon a stranger's interference, but I must beg that neither she nor mademoiselle venture out into the streets to-day. The soldiers are in a state of revelry and riot, which might subject them to insult. Any commands I should be happy to fulfill.

Respectfully,
HUGH VON TRENCK.'

Madame Moreau, some three days later, reads aloud the above from a card just slipped beneath the door.

Her niece stood before the glass tying on her hat and listening, with curling lips.

'You see, Maria,' she said, glancing up from the writing, 'you must not go out. It would be rash madness.'

But Maria only picked up her veil and began adjusting it across her pretty face.

'Maria, you hear that?'

'Yes, aunt,' she answered, 'but inasmuch as I am very hungry, and there is nothing in the house to eat, I think it rather a matter of necessity than of choice. Besides, I would rather have been openly insulted than to have Herr Hugh Von Trenck's magnanimous interference. Have no fear, auntie. I am quite able to take care of myself.'

And in spite of the elder lady's entreaties, and with a good-bye kiss and a reassuring smile she was gone.

But the smile faded as she stood a moment on the threshold of the outside door and glanced up and down the street filled with soldiers. The color in her cheeks paled to whiteness and her heart beat loud and fast.

She almost determined to turn back, when some one, standing at her elbow, said, in tones so earnest as to be nearly harsh, 'Did your aunt not receive any warning?' It was Hugh Von Trenck spoke.

'Are you authority in this house, sir, over all its inmates,' she questioned. 'If we are prisoners let us know it. You can then enforce your wishes.'

'You do me injustice, mademoiselle,' he replied, in low, thrilling tones. 'I beg for your own sake, not for mine, not to venture out this morning.'

'Your prayers and commands are all one to me, sir,' she retorted.

The next moment she had gained the street, fear forgotten in her indignant anger. With quick step she hastened in the necessary direction. Beyond a rude stare of admiration she was unmolested, and her purchases were effected.

She started to return, when coming immediately toward her, extending from the curb to the walk, was a line of Prussian soldiers, arm linked in arm, their steps unsteady from liquor, and their voices raised in laughter and song. What should she do? She feared to turn and flee lest they should pursue her. Perhaps by hiding her tremor and walking boldly on they might move enough for her to pass. Herr Von Trenck's hated advice rang in her ears. She should hate him trebly if it proved unnecessary. But now all the soldiers' eyes were turned upon her, as they stood an impassible phalanx barring her way.

'Pay us toll, my pretty little Francaise,' said one, fastening his coarse gaze upon her.

'Yes, pay us toll,' the others echoed. 'A kiss apiece!'

Concealing the awful sinking at her heart she strove to pass them by stepping down from the curb but the outside man and first speaker threw out his arm to prevent her escape.

'Ny, no!' he said, in freezing tones. 'You are our prisoner, and we let you off easy. Pay us willingly and we will prove good as our word. Drive us to force and we'll help ourselves.'

To scream would be but to gather round her fresh tormentors, so she struggled to appear calm.

'Let me pass,' she said, in low indignant tones, when, without deigning further parley, the first speaker threw his arms about her waist.

She felt his tainted breath upon her cheek. O, God! must her lips be polluted by his touch?

With sudden strength she wrenched herself from his grasp, the brutal laugh of the others jeering on her ears.

A scream, long and loud, burst from her lips, followed by another and another as her persecutors again approached, when, as if by magic, some one darted in between them and felled the ruffian to the earth.

The others, bold with drink, murmured angrily, but a gleaming pistol soon silenced them, even as they recognized their young colonel, and respectfully moved away.

Calling a guard he put the man he held under his heel in arrest, then turned and offered his arm to the trembling girl.

She saw, then, for the first time, that it was Hugh Von Trenck who had saved her. Haughtily refusing his arm, hating herself hating him more, she walked on in silence by his side. At her door she she forced herself to speak. 'Sir, I owe you my thanks,' she said.

'Madamoiselle the day will come when you will pay me your debt in full,' he replied and left her.

What did he mean? His words, the man himself, haunted her. How brave and full of courage! How nobly he had come to her relief! How generously he had offered no word of reproach, or of the truth that she had brought it on herself. If he had not been a Prussian, she might almost have liked him. As it was—but she got no further than this. She broke down in a storm of tears.

A week later the troops, all but a small reserve, were ordered out for a sortie. Paris had long been in siege and must soon capitulate.

With all her might Marie prayed night and day for success to the flag already doomed. That her cause could be lost seemed to her impossible.

Now and then the winds bore to her the boom of cannon. They were fighting not far off, and among them was the man she had treated with disdainful contempt.

Could it be that she thought of him at such a time.

The third day the fighting ceased—the Prussians were again victorious; but all night long they were bringing back the dead and the wounded to the little town.

It was just daybreak when a squad of soldiers halted at her door. She had not dreamed of undressing during the long night. A nameless dread had tortured her. She knew in this moment what it was, and she herself went down and threw open the door to receive the pale, senseless form they bore.

'This way!' said she, with quiet dignity and led the way to her own room, and her own bed.

He had told her he should repay her debt. Could he have forseen this day? Would he ever know what she had done for him.

For weeks his life hung in the balance but one night he opened his gray eyes to consciousness, and they rested on the solitary figure at his side. Her aunt, weary, had gone to rest. A smile broke over the white, thin face.

'You here, madamoiselle?' he said.

'Yes,' she answered, 'I am here.'

He held out his wasted hand, and she silently placed hers within it. Then, still with a smile upon his lips, he fell asleep; but from that moment the tide had turned, and life had gained the victory.

He was almost well again, when one day came the tidings of the fall of Paris and on the same day, by the fatality of fate, came to him the news of his promotion to a General's rank.

'Ah, mademoiselle,' he said, 'I cannot rejoice while you weep. I once said you should pay your debt. I little imagined how you would pay it. I meant then that the day should come when you should love and marry me. I have loved you from the first moment my eyes rested on you, in spite of your scorn and contempt. But now you have paid your debt in your own way. You have given me back my life. I will no longer torture you by my presence; I will go away and leave you.'

And he turned his head that she might not see the moisture in his eyes.

But softly she stole to his side and kneeling down, nestled her head on his arm.

'If I stay, Hugh, then will yo go?'

'My love—my darling! Do you mock me this is cruel!'

'Nay, Hugh, I am like my own poor Paris,' she replied. 'The siege has been a long one, but she and I, I fear have been 'Taken by Storm.''

A Losing Joke.

A prominent physician of Pittsburgh said jokingly to a lady patient who was complaining of her continued ill health, and of his inability to cure her, "try Hop Bitters!" The lady took it in earnest and used the Bitters, from which she obtained permanent health. She now laughs at the doctor for his joke, but he is not so well pleased with it as it cost him a good patient.—Harrisburg Patriot.

A Man with a Mermaid.

THE STRANGE CREATURE HALF WOMAN AND HALF FISH, NOW IN ST. LOUIS.

From the St. Louis Globe Democrat.

Mr. Charles A. Doyle is a San Franciscan, lately returned from Japan. He is registered at the Lindell Hotel from Yokohama, and in addition to the interest that attaches to him, owing to the strange country he hails from, he enjoys the farther distinction of being known "as the man with a mermaid." A Globe Democrat reporter learned yesterday that Mr. Doyle not only enjoys the distinction mentioned, but really is the possessor of a genuine mermaid. The reporter hunted up Mr. Doyle and had a pleasant chat with him. He had been in Japan for several years and was greatly interested in the many modernizing influences at work in the Orient. Mr. Doyle, who is an art critic and collector, went into raptures over the richness of Japan's art products, and this is just what was expected from him, and he is here with a large quantity of rare Japanese articles, as curious as they are costly.

But these lost all interest to the reporter when a long deep glass case, in the shape of an aquarium, was exhibited which held the most curious and rarest of all the objects in the collection. It was a wonderful looking thing almost hideous to look upon, but possessing a powerful attraction for the beholder, owing to the queer amalgamation of species displayed in its formation. Those who have seen the old-time geography illustration, which has recently been used as a trade mark for a certain patent hair restorative and which represents the mermaid raising from the sea and combing her long locks with one hand while in the other she holds a small looking glass, can recall this picture and thereby form an idea of what the present monstrosity looks like, barring, however, the beauty which is a distinguishing trait of the ideal mermaid. Mr. Doyle's strange curiosity is half human, half fish. The head, chest, abdomen and arms are unmistakable human, but from the arms down the creature is a fish, sealy, finy, and formed like the extremeties of a dweller in the water. The arms are covered with scales to the wrist, and the backs of the small hands have the same sealy covering to the finger tips. The head is small as that of a baby but is perfect in every detail; the forehead does not recede, but is high and strait and is of a class that indicates an unusual degree of intelligence. The eyes are soft, swimmy and lightless, as those of a fish, but the mouth, the ears, the nose, and in fact all the other features, are pronounced human, regular, clear cut, and as perfect as a beautiful woman's face. A light covering of brown hair, several inches in length, and eye brows of the same color are the only hirsute appendage.

The spinal column is clearly seen running up to the base of the skull and falling down the back until it is lost in the fishy extremity. Ten ribs are easily counted upon the breast, and the mammalian development for feeding the young is readily discernible. The mermaid measures almost three feet from the crown of the head to the extremity of the caudal fin, and is said to be larger than any other specimen of the kind ever seen in this country. The other mermaid is now on exhibition in the New York Aquarium, and attracts a vast amount of attention from scientists as well as from the general public.

Mr. Doyle is very proud of his mermaid, and, although a great many attempts have been made to induce him to sell the curious creature, he has thus far refused to part with her. He says the monstrosity has been subjected to the closest scrutiny by scientists of the Pacific slope, all of whom have pronounced her the most wonderful natural phenomenon ever brought to their notice, and have concurred in declaring mermaids no longer myths. The curiosity was captured two years ago by three fishermen, near Urishaba, in the great inland sea. They had seen her many times and had made many attempts to capture her, and succeeded in taking her only after the most persistent efforts. When taken she was placed in the museum at Tokio and remained there for a year and a half. She had been heard by the fishermen to sing a peculiar song while on the rocks, but never spoke, except to feebly try to articulate after her capture. She was fed on a peculiar sea-weed, the secret of which is only known to the Japanese, and thrived under the great care taken of her. Mr. Doyle purchased her from the authorities at Tokio at the extravagant figure of five thousand sats, or dollars. The purchase was made to satisfy a sudden desire to possess the strange creature, and Mr. Doyle does not know what special advantage he enjoys in being one of the very few men who own a mermaid.

Life Among Lions.

A TALK WITH A NOTED TAMER OF THE BRUTES.

'I began with lions about 1865. I was bossing the animals in John O'Brien's circus in Girard, Pennsylvania. Felix McDonald, the lion man, got a bad bite that put him for two months in the hospital. Somebody had to go into the cage, and I went. I'd seen him often, and I knew the animals pretty well. I didn't have much difficulty till the next spring in Pottsville. I was tantalizing the lions—four of 'em—with raw meat, and one of the females got behind me and, quick as a flash, bit through my calf. I kept quiet and turned around and hammered her until she let go.'

'How do you train them?'

'We treat green ones—those captured in Africa—and tame ones born in menageries very much the same. The wild ones are better and safer. This is because a lion used to a cage, and to being poked and teased, is less afraid of you. I'd sooner handle ten green lions than one that's used to the public. Besides, the green ones have great deal more play and spirit to 'em. We begin with them when the're two 'n a half or three years old. When I first go into a cage of untamed ones, I'd have a fire near by with three or four iron rods in it, red hot. If the beasts go for me, the men stand ready to jab the irons in their mouths and make 'em let go. I have been roughly handled sometimes, but never badly hurt. It takes two years to train one perfect, because you have to go so slow with 'em. Not one lion in five is good for tricks any way. Just as soon as you find one that don't act right you have to throw them out. Some of them are too excitable. Others are sulky and lie down in the corner, and if you go behind them you take big chances. You want to keep your face toward 'em all the time. I've worked on one four or five months—the third one there—and all he'll do is to jump a little.'

'How do you teach them?'

'We teach 'em to jump over a stick by having a board fence in the middle of the cage and driving them over it. To make them stand up in the corner we have a tackle hitched to their neck and pull 'em up. Then we pet 'em and they finally get used to it. We make 'em lie down by whipping them. When they're tricd up in the corner we catch 'em by the mouth and nostrils and teach them to keep their mouth open by holding it. Then we git to sticking our heads in.'

'That's rather risky, ain't it?'

'Not very. You can tell in an instant when they are goin to close, and jerk your head out. I saw one man killed in that way, though. His name was Whittle—Joe Whittle. I broke him in in Maryland and he took four lions, two of 'em were Frank and George that I am using now, and worked 'em for three years. Finally, in Frankfort, Pa., he was nervous one day and thought he would have a rehearsal before the show. He put his head in in Frank's mouth and the beast bit him, biting clean through his face, and partly through his head so that his lower jaw fell down on his breast. They tried to get him out, but Frank grabbed his leg with his teeth and he was badly chewed before they got him. He died a few days after.'

'Do they get up any affection for you?'

'No, they ain't much on affection. They would go for me if I was outside just as quick as anybody. They're deceiving brutes and very quick. I recolect in Galveston one of the boys, who was a little drunk, swore they would not hurt a fly, and went up to the cage. In a minute one of them, I don't know whether it was Frank or George that had him, and his right shoulder and the right side of his head weren't worth much when they got him away. I've only had five accidents that amounted to anything. Once one of them clawed off my shirt and most of the meat on my chest along with it, but my scratches are mostly little ones.'

In evidence he showed a pair of hands that had evidently seen hard usage, having been gashed in all directions.

Dr. Payne in his lecture upon the Foe and Grace says that dyspepsia is a great foe to grace. It darkens the sky and breaks the hopes of many Christians. They think the trouble is in their hearts, when it is in their stomachs. Thus the stomach influences the feelings to such a degree that it should be more carefully looked after and regulated with the never failing Simmons Liver Regulator, the constant use of which will so improve the feelings as to make the heart happy and the spirits light.

What Causes Gray Hairs.

Gray hair sometimes comes prematurely by inheritance, trouble or the large use of water containing lime. The sudden blanching of a head of hair is frequently caused by severe nervous shocks, and numerous historical and traditional cases may be cited in which sudden fear or overwhelming news has turned the hair white in a few hours. The case of Marie Antoinette is one of the most tender and touching, for in a single day her hair was changed to a silver gray. A sepoy of the Bengal army was taken prisoner in 1858 and the fright received caused his hair to become completely whitened within half an hour, the change being so rapid as to cause his captors to exclaim in astonishment: "He is turning gray!" Under the influence of fear or any great mental shock the blood recedes from the surface of the body to the heart, and it is supposed the same influence may cause the coloring fluid of the hair to retire to the root bulbs, where it remains thereafter. Gray hair has been known to become dark without the chemist's aid. In 1774, Nazarelia, a man 105 years old, was presented by a new set of teeth by nature, and a restoration of the black hair of his youth. Jown Weeks was blessed with a regeneration of the color of his hair a short time before his death, which occurred at the age of 114, and Sir John Sinclair, dying at 110, rejoiced at a youthful head of hair during the latter years of his life. Dr. Richards has reported the case of a man who had three changes of hair from black to white during his life, the the first taking place when he was about 35 years old.

His Bride's Mausoleum.

THE MEMORIAL CHURCH ERECTED BY PENNSYLVANIA'S IRON KING.

Lebanon dispatch to New York sun.

A new church edifice, the princely gift of a Pennsylvania iron king, was consecrated in this quiet back country borough recently. There is quite a romantic chapter of love and sorrow connected with it. The new edifice cost a very large sum of money, and it is generally known that every dollar was paid by Mr. Robert Coleman, one of the leading members of the "house of Cornwall," founded upon three mountains of iron ore here in Lebanon county, about 140 miles west of New York. The church is in the borough proper. Cornwall, a few miles distant, is the home of the Colemans, the richest iron family in the State.

Several years ago Mr. Robert Coleman met a young lady of very prepossessing appearance on a tour he made of New England. She was the daughter of a respectable family of Connecticut in moderate circumstances. A mutual attachment followed, and not long afterward the couple were married. A short time after the marriage the young bride was suddenly taken ill, and a trip on the continent was arranged by her husband. It was thought that the climate of the south France, Italy, or Spain would be best for her. All that love and boundless wealth could give was furnished with a liberal hand. The husband was compelled to remain at home by business engagements. It was confidentially believed that the bride would soon be restored to good health, and very soon after her departure the husband set about preparing a surprise to her. He supposed that she would be abroad about a year, and he determined to erect one of the most costly residences she had ever seen and have it all furnished and furnished in time for her arrival home. She was to know nothing about it until the carriage should drive her to the door from the railroad station. Mr. Powell, a Philadelphia architect, was instructed to prepare the plans. The structure was to be in the Scottish baronial style, and Mr. Coleman cared very little about the cost. A fine site was chosen, broad and level and elevated, with a commanding view of a long stretch of the Lebanon Valley.

The Coleman estate comprises about five thousand acres. In one part of it is a brown stable, containing some thirty thoroughbred horses. The most valuable animals are quartered in rooms having mirrors on the walls and Brussels carpet on portions of the floor. Five monstrous furnaces are smelting ore night and day on the estate. Three hills contain an inexhaustible supply of ore. These furnaces have made millionaires of a dozen families or more. Robert Coleman is the youngest of the iron kings of the present line of owners. Interested parties and heirs are scattered in many climes, but Mr. Coleman remains in complete charge of the vast estate. Everything is conducted in princely style. Every employee lives on the place, rent free. The cottages are models of neatness, cleanliness, and convenience. A church, Sunday school and other necessary wants are supplied. The great farm supplies employees with wheat, corn, potatoes and vegetables far below market price. Splendid family mansions occupy prominent places. Tally-ho coaches, drawn by four-in-hands, convey the members of the Coleman family and their many visitors to the railway stations. Hence the new mansion that was to be erected by Mr. Robert Coleman as a surprise to his bride, it can readily be imagined, was to be something exceedingly grand. The foundations were massive and built of limestone and granite. The underground divisions were commodious and finished in the most modern style. A hard cement floor was laid. The frames of the bay windows for the first floor weighed several tons apiece. The super structure was to have been of marble, iron and granite. The work was proceeding splendidly and some fifty men were steadily employed. Car after car load of material was arriving and being put into place. All efforts were made to rapidly push on the completion of the work. Every detail of furniture and upholstery had been decided upon. The gardner had received his special instructions. In fact everything had been arranged looking to the rapid completion of the mansion, when a telegram came over the sea that the young bride was very ill in Paris. Quickly followed another dispatch that she was dead. Every tool in the new house was dropped. The young husband, stricken with grief, was for a time not to be consoled. He ordered the working men on the new mansion to go to the office and draw their pay and then remove their tools and other property. In a few days orders were given to tear down what had been put up, to throw in excavations, and plow the place over. All that remained of what was to have been a palace was ordered to be obliterated.

The construction of the beautiful church concludes the story. The remains of the dead bride were embalmed and brought back to America, and were then placed in a vault until the construction of the church walls had been sufficiently advanced to receive them. The new edifice is cruciform, 96 by 75 feet. The floor had Spanish tile from valencia. The woodwork is of solid oak. A massive tower, twenty-four feet square, rises one hundred feet in the air. The structure is of gray stone even to the window sills. A hydraulic engine in the basement supplies the air for the organ. The style of architecture is old English, with massive granite columns. The leading Episcopal clergymen of the eastern section of the State were present at the consecration, including M. De Wolfe Howe, bishop of the diocese, who was consecrator.

Thousands have been cured of dumb ague, billious disorders, jaundice, dyspepsia, and all diseases of the liver, blood and stomach, after all other remedies have failed, by using Prof. Guilmette's French Liver Pad, which is a quick and permanent cure for these complaints. Ask your druggist for the great remedy, and take no other, and if he does not keep it send $1.50 to the French Pad Co., and receive one by mail post-paid.

A valuable heifer belonging to a farmer near Northallerton, in England, recently broke its leg, and it had to be amputated. The animal has since been supplied with a wooden leg, on which it moves about with the utmost ease, which proves the absurdity of hastily ordering the destruction of animals that meet with such accidents.

BLOOMSBURG, PA.

Friday, Nov. 12, 1880.

There are allegations of republican fraud in the vote of New York State, and the matter is to be investigated.

Hon. S. P. Wolverton was re-elected to the State Senate from the Northumberland district.

The entire county ticket was elected by the Democrats in Montour notwithstanding the combination of Republicans and Greenbackers on some of the offices. W. C. Johnson was re-elected Register and Recorder, an office which he has well filled for many years.

The trial of Philp, on the charge of forging the Morey letter is not yet concluded, most of the evidence offered by each side has been contradicted by the other, so that it will be a very difficult matter to arrive at any satisfactory conclusion.

STATE SENATOR.

The vote for State Senator in the district is as follows:

	McHenry	Andrews	Maj
Columbia	4637	2137	2500
Lycoming	6386	5013	1373
Montour	1832	1250	582
Sulivan	1052	635	471
McHenry's majority,			4926

MAJOR KLOTZ'S MAJORITY.

	Klotz.	Scott	Majority.
Columbia	4502	2120	2382
Carbon	3523	2819	704
Luzerne	4011	3114	897
Montour	1867	1228	639
Monroe	3326	940	2386
Pike	1347	537	810
Lackawanna	——	——	529
Klotz's majority,			8347

Some members of the Republican County committee have an unpleasant curiosity to know just how the $300 sent here by their State Committee has been expended. Will any of them have the back bone to insist on knowing? Judging from the very liberal and unnecessary number of large and small posters for old clubs, young clubs, and infants, that were distributed by the chairman during the campaign, it is altogether likely that there is a printing bill some where that will come in for its full share of the fund.

Republicans generally, in this county admit the fact that the constantly increasing Democratic majority is partly owing to bad management on their side. They claim that with trustworthy leaders they ought to be able to hold their own. In the past twenty years our majorities have gradually risen from 800 to 2400, and if republicans submit to the present control, it will not be long before we can score 3000. The best element in their party kick sometimes, but when the managers crack the party whip they all pass under the rod like gentle lambs.

Was New York Carried by Fraud.

The vote of New York, and Kings county as returned, was certainly a great disappointment to the Democrats. The republicans conceded a Democratic majority of sixty thousand in the city, and the Democrats claimed from fifteen to eighteen thousand in Kings county. These claims were not out of the way in view of the increased registration. The Telegram says of the result in that city:

"in 1876 the number of votes polled was 171,380, and the Democratic majority that year was 53,969, against a majority of 41,376 this year, showing a loss to the Democracy of 12,593. These figures are the more significant considering the enormous increase of 83,831 in the registration. The Presidential vote, according to all calculations based upon the past, should have shown a Democratic majority of not less than 63,000 in this city. As it is, the republican vote has increased 43 per cent. and the Democratic vote only 18 per cent. in four years."

The Record says this adverse majority has been produced by fraud, and can be supported by facts, and that voters were largely from Vermont, Washington city and elsewhere. The Democratic National committee declares that the vote cast in certain localities was largely in excess of the late census returns—and calls upon the people to make comparison of the vote with the census returns, and send the result to the chairman of the Democratic State Executive committee. The National committee says in conclusion:

The unaccountable increase in the Republican vote in New York and Kings counties, and plain evidences of fraud in such vote, demand immediate investigation on the part of the respective Democratic organizations of the counties.

RESOLVED, That all citizens of this State, in each and every locality, who favor the right of the people to popular government, and who beleive in the very fair vote and honest count essential to the perpetuation of our institutions, are requested to aid by all means in their power the ascertainment of the result.

RESOLVED, That a copy of these resolutions be farwarded to every Democratic organization in this State.

There seems to be something wrong in the vote of the city, as well as the largely increased Republican vote throughout the State. We hope the matter will be thoroughly investigated, and if it shall be proven that the result has been brought about by fraud, the vote of New York shall be thrown out. Fraud vitiates every transaction.

GOOD COMPANY NUMBER FOURTEEN.

Good Company, Number Fourteen, has the second installment of "Rose and the Doctor," the serial story by Ellen W. Olney. "Organization in Charity," is another timely article by Mr. D. O. Kellogg, of Philadelphia, where the associated charity reform was first put into practical operation in this country a few years since. There is a readable account of the origin and workings of the Interior Department, which includes a larger part of the practical details of the general government than many are aware of doubtless. "My House and my Handmaiden" gives some experiences in Germany. "Pennyroyal Church" and "An Exceptional Case" are two of the stories. The remaining material includes "An Episode of Modern Egypt," "Boarding Round" "A Day in the Ruins of Carthage," "What She Lost at the Fortune-teller's, "The Bouquiniste, Calf's Head en Tortue," an account of the Horace Mann School for the Deaf in Boston where the deaf and dumb are taught to speak; besides contributions from Mrs. Lizzie W. Champney and Miss Dora Read Goodale.

The Truth About Mr. Hayes' Administration

What object is there now in telling anything but the truth about Mr. R. B. Hayes, who goes back to Ohio in four months? No Republican politician has anything to expect of him. The most persistent gull that flutters in the wake of the party can hope for nothing farther from him in the way of civil service reform. His record in office is made up already. His day is over. From this time until March 4, 1881, he will attract a very small share of the public attention; and his departure from the White House will be an event remarkable only because it purges the place of a tenant who has occupied it for four years without a title.

Yet once in a while we find in our republican contemporaries paragraphs like the following:

"If the administration of President Hayes had not been clean and upright, if it had not managed the finances well, if it had not conducted our foreign affairs with ability, if it had not maintained the laws with vigor, the republican party would have gone down at the polls before a storm of popular indignation. In reckoning the force which won the battle, no statement will be complete which does not place in the forefront the wisdom and patriotism and the integrity of the administration of Rutherford B. Hayes."

This is taken from the Utica Herald, a newspaper edited by Mr. Ellis H. Roberts. The Washington correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial writes in the same strain:

"Friends of the President say but for his clear and honest administration in every branch of public affairs, which gave the republican party respectability once more, that party could not have succeeded, and they claim with much show of reason, that the party is more indebted to R. B. Hayes for its triumph than any one man."

This sort of talk passes current simply because nobody takes the trouble to contradict it. The facts are accessible.

Under Mr. Hayes, corruption in the Post Office Department has reached a degree of audacity unknown since the days of Creswell. For the greater part of his fraudulent term Mr. Hayes maintained at the head of the Post Office an incompetent, an ex-rebel General, whose presence there was the direct result of the scandalous political bargain by which Mr. Hayes himself came into power. Key was the figurehead: Tyner wielded the political influence of the department; while Brady and his crew had full swing in the financial management of affairs. They have not neglected their opportunities. Jobbers outside the walls of the general Post Office have combined and conspired with dishonest officials inside, and the people have been plundered of millions of dollars. The star route system, and the looseness of the laws governing contracts for that service, afforded the Ring all the chance they wanted. Under pretence of "expediting service" the cost of running eighty six star routes was increased in eighteen months from $613,000 to $2,240,504. The increase for expedition, meanwhile, on all the other star routes in the United States, more than ten thousand in number, did not amount to $50,000. Favored contractors and dishonest officials have profited under Hayes as they did not profit in the worst days of Grantism. The star route scandals have grown more flagrant each year of Hayes, and the spoils to be divided larger. The report submitted last month by Brady shows that for the year ending June 30, 1880, the expenditure on star routes was a million dollars in excess of that for the year previous, and a million and a half in excess of the estimates. Brady and his Ring have been investigated by Congress. The facts have all been brought out, and the evidence is on record. The guilty ones escaped punishment only through treachery in the Senate and House of Representatives. Brady and the Ring have been exposed and denounced by the New York Times and other honest Republican newspapers. Mr. Hayes has never raised a hand to prevent or stop the scandal.

Under Hayes and Schurz, the mangement of Indian affairs has been infamous in its perfidity to the tribes and its disregard of treaty obligations. The treatment of the Utes, to name one case out of many, has been shamelessly dishonest. In dealing with this and other tribes the Fraudulent Administration has made itself a party to the plans of adventurers and jobbors for the spoliation of the Indians. Upright, clean, and honest are not the proper adjectives to use here.

Under Hayes and Evarts, the foreign affairs of the United States have been conducted with indifference to the rights of American citizens abroad and apparent contempt for the honor of the nation. Our flag has been insulted, our ships have been boarded and outraged on the high seas again and again. Whatever ability has been displayed in the foreign policy of Mr. Hayes and Mr. Evarts must be sought in the efforts of the Department of State to avoid trouble.

Under Hayes and Sherman, the administration of the national finances has been managed largely for the benefit of private interests. John Sherman's friends have pocketed millions of dollars which otherwise would have gone to reduce the debt or to lighten taxation. The refunding in four per cent. bonds was made a scandal by Sherman's relations to the First National Bank of this city. There is not a person familiar with the finance who does not know that the people have been defrauded on a gigantic scale in the operations of the Government during the past three years. There is not a banker in Wall street, Republican or Democrat, who could not give the specifications.

It is better to consider the facts before giving a clean bill of health to the concern that was born of fraud for years ago.—N. Y. Sun.

Chinese Ballots.

That the republican managers resorted to general and systematic intimidation at the recent election is demonstrated by the fact that the ballots used by them were so marked as to enable the precinct politicians to detect at a glance any other ballot in the hand of the voter. In this state the caption "Electors" on the presidential ballot was printed from elaborate engravings of six different designs. A fac simile of one of these was given in the Patriot the day before the election. In New York there is a very stringent statute which forbids the printing or distribution or casting of any marked ballot under severe penalties. This statute is as follows:

SECTION 1. At all elections hereafter held within the limits of this state for the purpose of enabling electors to choose by ballot any officer or officers under the laws of this state or of the United States, or to pass upon any amendment, law or public act or proposition submitted to the electors to vote by ballot under any law, each and all ballots used at any such election shall be upon plain white printing paper, and without any impression, device, mark or other peculiarity whatsoever upon or about them to distiguish one ballot from another in appearance, except the names of the several candidates, and they shall be printed with plain black ink.

SEC. 2. Every ballot shall have a caption [as provided by law,] but such caption shall be printed in one straight line black ink, with plain type of the size now generally known and designated as 'Great Primer Roman Condensed Capitals,' and the names of all candidates shall be printed in plain type, with letters of a uniform size.

SEC. 3. It shall be unlawful for any person to print or distribute, or to cast any ballot printed or partly printed contrary to the provisions of this act, or to mark the ballot of any voter, or to deliver to any voter such marked ballot for the purpose of ascertaining how he shall vote at any such election.

SEC. 4. Any person or persons who shall knowingly or wilfully violate or attempt to violate any of the provisions of this act shall be guilty of misdemeanor, and be punished by imprisonment in a county jail or penitentiary for not exceeding one year, or by a fine of not exceeding $250, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

SEC. 5. All acts or parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed; Provided, that nothing in this act contained shall be construed to prohibit any elector from voting any ballot entirely written or from voting any printed ballot which in outward appearance complies with all the requirements of this act upon the face of which he has personally made or caused to be made an erasure, correction or insertion of any name by pencil-mark or otherwise.

In defiance of this law the republican state committee of New York had the Garfield electoral ticket printed with the word "Electors" on the back so that the workers at the polls could tell without the slightest difficulty whether or not the voter cast a Garfield ballot. The word "Electors" thus printed was not a "caption" but an indorsement. It was not a heading, but a label notifying every bystander at the polls who choose to see, that the man who voted the ticket so designated cast a republican ballot. Per contra, those who did not vote a ticket so designated were known to have cast a ballot for some other candidate than Garfield. It will be noticed that the statute above quoted specifically and positively declares that it shall be unlawful for any person to print or distribute or cast any ballot printed or partly printed contrary to the provisions of this act." Nothing therefore can be more certain than that all ballots cast in the state of New York with the word "Electors" printed on the back instead of at the head are unlawful and void. In one ward of the city of Oswego all tickets so printed were thrown out by the election inspectors. The legality of the marked ballots will be tested and may result in the loss of the electoral vote of New York to Garfield. Unquestionably a ticket so marked that any one near the poll may know its contents is not a secret ballot. Unquestionably, too, the New York statute was enacted for the purpose of enabling the voter to use a secret ballot. Therefore not only the letter but also the spirit of the law has been violated by those who printed, distributed and voted the marked tickets. To all intents and purposes there might as well have been a viva voce vote, each voter calling out to the election officers the names of the persons he voted for, as that the voter should be required to cast a ballot so marked that its contents must be known to those present at the polls. It would be said that the throwing out of marked ballots would be taking advantage of a mere technicality, but such would not be the fact. The provisions of the law intended to ensure a free and fair ballot by forbidding the use of marked tickets, are based on the great principle of the political equality of all citizens and when they are violated the very foundation stone of republican government is shaken. Some time or other it must be determined by the proper authority whether a citizen of the United States may be subjected with impunity to espionage and dictation while excercising the right of suffrage, and whether tickets printed, distributed and voted in defiance of laws protecting the secresy of the ballot are good and valid. The proper authority in the particular case under consideration is the Congress of the United States. The question may as well be raised now as at any future time. In fact the sooner it is settled the better, for the sooner we know whether one man may lawfully own another on election day the sooner we will be able to decide whether our government is a republic of freemen or a plutocracy of slaves.—Patriot.

The Result.

The later returns of the election have not changed the table of States as presented in this paper last week, except Oregon which is republican. For several days California hung in the balance, but it seems clear from all the reports that it has given a small Democratic majority, although it is probable that one of the Democratic electors has been defeated, owing to personal unpopularity. The popular majorities, as nearly as they can now be had, and the electoral vote, are shown in the following table.

FOR GARFIELD. State.	Electoral Votes.	Maj.	FOR HANCOCK. State.	Electoral Votes.	Maj.
Colorado	3	2,500	Alabama	10	40,000
Connecticut	6	2,579	Arkansas	6	30,000
Illinois	21	50,000	California	6	500

Wisconsin	10	30,000	West Virginia	5	13,000
Totals	213	497,55	Totals	156	512,70

This gives Garfield and Arthur a majority of 57 of the electors, and Hancock an apparent majority of 15,153 of the popular vote. The Democrats will have the next Senate by two majority at least, and possibly by four, while the party division in the House will be very close, the Republicans having an apparent majority of four or five.

The official figures are returned from all but about half a dozen of the counties of Pennsylvania. The Republican majority is about 34,000. The following are the majorities reported, all official with the exception of Blair, Bedford, Lancaster, Philadelphia, Jefferson and Sullivan.

Thanksgiving Day.

GOVERNOR HOYT ISSUES HIS PROCLAMATION.

The following proclamation in regard to Thanksgiving day was issued from the State department on Monday.

A PROCLAMATION.

The President of the United States by proclamation has recommended the people to meet on Thursday the 25th day of November instant, in their respective places of worship, to make acknowledgments to Almighty God for His bounties and His protection and to offer Him prayer for their continuance.

To the dwellers in all the nation have been allotted "health, wealth and prosperity throughout all our borders; peace, honor and friendship with all the world; firm and faithful adherence by the great body of our population to the principles of liberty and justice which have made our greatness as a nation, and to the wise institutions and strong frame of government and society which will perpetuate it."

To the contented, happy inhabitants of peaceful Pennsylvania have been accorded special grounds of Thanksgiving. All our vast and varied industries have been prospered, and the toiler has everywhere found adequate rewards for labor.

It has been put into the hearts of the people to apprehend how society is a great unit in which the welfare of one is the welfare of all, and how no man or class, or interest can receive injury without injury to all. Patience in trial, confidence one in another, courageous purposes of persistent industry, the recognition in all our productions and in all our traffic, that we are children of a common Father, have exalted the four millions of our people into a wondrous illustration of the power of a free christian commonwealth. Let us all turn ourselves to a devout observance of the recommedation of the President.

Given under my hand and the great seal of the State at Harrisburg this 8th day of November, A. D., 1880, and of the Commonwealth the 105th.

H. M. HOYT,

By the Governor,
M. S. QUAY, Secretary of Commonwealth.

The Cause of it.

The defeat of General Hancock is inexplicable to those who appreciate the character of the man and dispassionately compare him with his successful opponent. They cannot conceive such obliquity of moral vision on the part of the people as would select Garfield in preference to Hancock for the chief magistracy of the republic. The solution of the problem nevertheless is not difficult.

1. A majority of the American people have not voted for Garfield.

2. More than a million of the votes cast for Garfield were given by an ignorant, superstitious and infuriated race incapable of making an intelligent choice and governed solely by their fears and passions in their actions at the polls.

3. Every monopoly favored by a class legislation opposed General Hancock.

4. The whole power of federal administration was thrown into the scale against General Hancock.

5. The Pacific railroad corporations and the Standard Oil Company opposed General Hancock.

6. The management of the campaign was not entrusted by the Democratic National Committee to General Hancock's real friends but placed in the hands of W. H. Barnum and others who opposed his nomination at Cincinnati and who are mere mercenary politicians.

7. Samuel J. Tilden's indifference and John Kelley's blunders defeated General Hancock in New York and this gave his candidacy the coup de grace.

Nevertheless Garfield is not the choice of a majority of the voters of the United States. He will be a "minority" president and could not have been chosen at all but for the peculiar structure of the electoral system. A direct vote of the people would have defeated him, as the returns will show, and he owes his election after all to the "heresy of States Rights" so much decried by his party. —Patriot.

It should be the aim of every owner of Horses, Cows, &c., to make them as handsome and useful as possible. The German Horse and Cow Powder helps to develop all the powers of the animal. It improves its beauty and increases its usefulness. It makes milk, mucle and fat. By using it a horse will do more work and a cow give more milk and be in better condition with less feed. Sold only by weight at 15 cents a pound by C. A. Kleim, Bloomsburg.

N. W. Ayer & Son's American Newspaper Annual for 1880 is just published.

It gives the name of every paper published in the United States and Canada, its frequency of issue, politics or other distinctive features, its year of establishment, circulation and advertising rates.

It gives the population of each place in which newspapers are published, and also the population of the county and state in which it is situated, and the political majority of each state and county at the Presidential election of 1876.

Under each state heading is given its capital, the number of counties in the state, the number of counties and places in which papers are published, the number of towns which are county seats, and the total number of papers at each issue, while on page 541 is a tabulated statement for all the states, territories and Canadian provinces.

Great pains have been taken in the preparation of this work, and it seems to us to be one of the most complete newspaper directories ever published. N. W. Ayer & Son are one of the largest and most reliable advertising agencies in this country.

Constable Harris found a man on the street in an almost helpless condition last Saturday. He was wet through by the rain and did not seem to know where he came from or whither he was going. The officer took him to the lock-up for shelter and Dr. McReynolds was called in by Caleb Barton, one of the Poor Directors, to examine him. There were no evidences of intoxication, and the Doctor gave as his opinion that the man was not in his right mind. Owing to the filthy condition of his clothing, a thorough examination could not be made. Mr. Barton had the man removed to the Poor house for the present, until inquiries can be made as to his proper settlement.

AN INSANE MAN.

A man was committed to jail by a justice of the peace in Main township on Monday, the 1st inst. His description is as follows: About five feet, ten inches high, rather slim, dark hair, heavy dark beard and mustache, about forty years of age. He is dressed in dark coat light colored pants and black hat. He gave his name as George Buskirk, and George Walter. The name of W. Vanbuskirk is stamped on his shirt. The man is evidently insane. Any one knowing his place of residence or anything else concerning him, will please inform Sheriff U. H. Ent, of this county, so that proper steps may be taken to have him removed from the jail. Exchanges please copy.

A noble young voter did himself the honor to leave the ranks of the parade on Tuesday night long enough to whip two little boys on the side walk who made some remarks not entirely to his liking. He cut one boy's head by striking him with a torch. "We hope he will be punished as he deserves, as his conduct is denounced by all good citizens irrespective of party."

NORMAL SCHOOL GRADUATES.

Superintendent Wickersham has addressed a circular to the State Normal Schools, enforcing a more thorough training in all departments of the science of teaching for graduates. In the junior class he demands school economy and detailed methods of teaching common school branches for half the year. In the senior class, mental philosophy, science of teaching, history of education, school systems and school law are required, with such practice in the model school as may graduate 'an expert' in practical teaching. The superintendent says, "To present a candidate for graduation in a normal school is to vouch for his professional skill."

Some of the paraders on Tuesday night got excited about something and flourished their pistols around promiscuously. The law concerning the carrying of concealed weapons should be strictly enforced. Give Governor Hoyt a chance to grant a previous pardon.

The Waller railroad will probably be in operation before very long. Work has been commenced, and we understand the contractor propose to push it through to a speedy completion. We hope it may be so.

The medicines of Dundas Dick & Co. are unexcelled for elegance, purity, and reliability. Their Seidlitine Seidlitz Powders, are as pleasant as Lemonade. Their Soft Capsules are world famous. See Advt. july 30, '80-6m

THE FINAL FIZZLE.

The republicans had their last grand demonstration on Tuesday evening. Big bills were distributed far and wide announcing a "grand parade" of the republicans of Columbia and adjoining counties, and extensive arrangements were made for a big time. When they came to muster their forces they had about one hundred footmen in line, fully one half being boys from 10 to 18 years of age. On the banners were the following: "We did It with our little 329;" "Chinee letter no good—to Hancockee;" "Remember the Democratic tariff fraud of 1844." Some of the boys carried brooms, others had scoop shovels. There were a number of wagons in line, one containing a blacksmith, another some miners drilling ore, another, a boat loaded with Democrats en route for Salt River, and several others which nobody seemed to understand. Many houses along the line were brilliantly illuminated. Many leading republicans were opposed to having this parade and took no part in it. Hence so far as numbers were concerned it was a fizzle.

The Omaha Bee contains more Far Western news than any other paper on our Exchange list. The efforts of the publishers to draw immigration to that fertile region by circulating Sample Copies of the Weekly among eastern farmers is commendable. The Bee is mailed free to every applicant who forwards his address to the Daily Bee, Omaha, Nebraska.

It is just possible that if we were on the other side it might not have occurred to us that parades and illuminations after a political victory are needless and inexpedient, such is the power of prejudice. But it is a Republican, who tells us he does not see the magnanimity or advantage, or good sense of crowing because one party numbers more than another, as if majorities were the test of truth, and does see great peril to the republic in any custom that exasperates party prejudice, and teaches men to look on an election as a battle. We shall save the thought for the coming Democratic victory, hoping that the Democracy will not imitate the example of "hitting a man after he is down." X

A NEW PAYING OCCUPATION
FOR LADIES & GENTLEMEN

The Handsome Nickel Plated New Home Lamp being introduced to the public this season, is the most meritorious article ever offered agents to make money with, is safer and more convenient than the student lamp which has heretofore had the reputation of being the safest lamp made, it has a clamp to attach it to the sewing machine, piano, organ, desk, etc. The fear of the ordinary lamp being accidentally upset or thrown from the table, is entirely relieved by this simple clamp contrivance. It can be adjusted to throw the light just where it is wanted to suit the eyes, and can be converted into a handsome wall lamp. It has the best argand burner, a filling indicator, and convenient match box, and its price is within the reach of every one. It has been fully tested and editorially endorsed by the Western Christian Advocate, Am. Christian Review, Herald and Presbyter, Journal and Messenger, and Christian Standard, the leading religious papers of Cincinnati, and is endorsed by the Mayor and Postmaster of Cincinnati, the agent of the American express company and presidents of insurance companies, as being the safest, most convenient and best lamp made.

There are three reasons why agents should seek such an article to canvass for—first for its absolute safety and great convenience; it is needed in every home—second its low price makes its sale immense—third it will be a great credit to handle such an article. One southern agent writes, it sells faster than Gen. Lee's portrait sold right after the war, another writes, it beats the palmy days of the sewing machine, its rapid sale, low price, and liberal terms surprise all agents. Address Home Lamp Co., Cincinnati, O., mentioning our paper and they will give you full particulars and exclusive territory to canvass in. nov.5-13w

Proceedings of the Columbia County Teachers' Institute.

Pursuant to announcement by the County Superintendent, the Columbia County Teachers' Institute assembled for its annual session, in the Academy at Orangeville Pa., at 2:30 p. m. on Tuesday, November 2nd, 1880. An organization was effected by Rev. G. K. Canfield, Principal of Orangeville Academy, Vice President; Tilghman Laufer, Secretary; Miss Christie B. Welliver Assistant Secretary.

The County Superintendent then addressed the teachers, congratulating them on the prospects of a good meeting, as indicated by the large attendance at the first session. He reviewed briefly the objects of the Institute, stating that upon the teachers, in a measure, depended the success of the meeting

Prof. Colgrove, L. L. D., President of West Virginia College, was then introduced, and occupied the remainder of the afternoon in giving the teachers some practical suggestions, taking "School Government" as the basis of his remarks. A school without proper discipline, he regarded about as bad as no school at all. It is of paramount importance for a teacher to have good discipline. To achieve this end, three things are absolutely necessary: the love, respect and obedience of the scholars. To gain the love of his pupils, the teacher must not be passionate; not harsh and reserved in his deportment; but kind and sociable. If he would have their respect, he must avoid all eccentricities and peculiarity of dress; must be courteous, and should cultivate the amenities of social intercourse among them, and the subject under consideration should be thoroughly understood, lest a belief of incompetency, on the part of the teacher, might spring up among the pupils. All these little things will be noticed by the scholars, and will lessen their respect for him correspondingly. If the love and respect of the pupils can be obtained, obedience will follow as a natural consequence.

Music—"To be There."

EVENING SESSION.

Opened at 7 o'clock by music, "One of the Sweet Old Chapters." Prof. Colgrove lectured on the subject, "What is the matter with our English Grammar?" To say that he handled our poor grammars without gloves, is putting it mildly. He berated them as if they were candidates for public office, characterizing them as "crude, contradictory, false, unscientific, redundant, and inefficient." His invectives are aimed chiefly at the definitions, which he considered "ambiguous and equivocal." To substantiate his assertions, he gave numerous illustrations on the board. He said a great many bad things about our grammars, and stigmatized them as being a "blot upon our school system."

WEDNESDAY MORNING.

Institute assembled at 9 o'clock. The devotional exercises were conducted by Prof. Colgrove, followed by music—"[illegible]."

The Superintendent introduced Miss Delia E. Patridge, of Philadelphia, who proceeded to discuss the subject of reading. In reading, nature should be followed at its best. Three things are necessary; looking, thinking and uttering the words. The main object should be to obtain the thought, and then inflection and emphasis become easy. Teachers should insist upon correct reading. Criticisms should not be made by word but by example.

Recess.

Prof. G. E. Little, of Gettysburg was then called upon to give instructions in drawing. His work was very simple and practical. The Professor is an adept in the art, and by his skill has awakened an interest among our teachers in this important study.

At this juncture Miss Patridge again took the stand, and drilled a class of teachers in reading. She displayed great skill in conducting this exercise, from which it was evident that she was well conversant with the subject. If the teachers will follow out her suggestions the results can be none other than gratifying.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The exercises were opened by music—"The Old Home," followed by a talk on "General Education" by Prof. Colgrove. The address was the result of transcendant genius, and was highly appreciated by the audience.

Recess.

Miss Patridge resumed her discussion on reading. In the course of her remarks she gave the methods of instructing now in vogue in the famous schools at Quincy, Mass.

Miss Amelia Armstrong read an essay on "Object Teaching" reciting her methods of instructions with objects; such as animals, plants, &c. It at once became apparent that she was a wide-awake, energetic teacher, and devoted to her profession. No doubt she has spent 'long days of pleasure and nights devoid of ease' in contriving methods whereby the interests of her pupils might be best subserved.

EVENING SESSION.

By 7 o'clock the hall was packed to repletion by the teachers and others from the town. The exercises were opened by music—'Not for Gold, &.' The most interesting feature of the evening was the lecture by Miss Patridge, on the subject, 'We Girls.' The lecture abounds with hits at the follies of society as well as individuals, is chuck full of rollicking humor, and points many a moral, which, if followed, would make all of us better and happier. One moment the audience would be held entranced with the highest flights of eloquence and pathos; the next they would be convulsed with laughter at some humorous anecdote or witty saying. A good voice, fine presence, appropriate gestures and correct emphasis, on the part of the speaker, made the lecture not only a success, but the lecture of the week. It was what needed to vary the monotony of the institute proceedings.

THURSDAY MORNING.

The institute convened at the usual hour. Opened with prayer by Rev. T. O. Clees, followed by music, 'We will meet by the beautiful gate.'

Prof. Little continued his instructions in drawing.

The Superintendent here took the floor and spoke briefly of the folly of children having reading books too hard and difficult for them. Teachers should exercise the greatest care in this respect, a scholar not to bring a book into school until he can read it satisfactorily. The teacher has the power to dictate what books shall be used, and should see that his instructions are carried out. A uniformity in copy books should also be insisted upon.

Miss Patridge gave a class drill to a number of primary scholars. The sentence-method she considered best in teaching beginners. The blackboard should be used extensively, and the lessons should be written, not printed. Give the thought first, and the subject becomes at once interesting; words are mere empty forms. Go slowly; better read a few sentences with the proper inflection, than devour a whole page.

Recess.

Prof. Smith, of Berwick, took up the subject of 'Composition.' He would teach this study the first year. Reading, spelling and composition go hand in hand. Should be taught by sentence-building, taking simple sentences at first, and then adding modifiers. Every year the lessons should be made more difficult. Sentences should not be formed into paragraphs until the pupils are far advanced. Spelling should not be taught outside of the child's vocabulary.

THURSDAY AFTERNOON.

Opened by music—Duett, by Ella Black and Gertie Harder. At the request of the Superintendent, Marion Keller, an Orangeville lad of about 11, exhibited his remarkable faculty for spelling words backward. Long and difficult words were given him by the teachers, all of which he spelled as soon as soon as pronounced. Many considered it a hoax, but words came in thick and fast, until the most skeptical were convinced that the lad was in possession of a power which very few can boast. Talk about spelling reform!

The remainder of the afternoon was occupied by Miss Patridge in a discussion on 'School Government,' and 'Moral Training.' Government must be founded on justice or it will inevitably fail. The teacher should inspire his pupils to govern themselves by appealing to their better natures. The hearty co-operation of the pupils is an indispensible adjunct to good government.

EVENING SESSION.

Prof. I. W. Marshall, the western explorer, had been announced as the lecturer for the evening, and a large audience assembled to hear him; but owing to a mistake by the railroad officials in sending his baggage the wrong way, he failed to arrive. Miss Patridge, however, entertained the audience by some excellent recitations. Miss Patridge possesses rare elocutionary powers, and it is needless to say that her readings were of the highest order, and that they were richly enjoyed by the audience.

FRIDAY MORNING.

The opening exercises were conducted by Prof. Schoonover.

Prof. Little again took up his subject, and gave some fine specimens in drawing.

J. S. Grimes followed by an excellent treatise on history.

Prof. Canfield entertained the audience for a short time by a talk on Grammar. The speaker considered some system of diagrams as the best method to teach this important branch. It should be taught by objects, the same as reading.

FRIDAY AFTERNOON.

The Superintendent disposed of several questions given by the teachers relative to the school law. Also several in regard to tardiness.

Prof. Smith resumed his talk on Composition.

Recess.

Miss Patridge gave instructions in Articulation, giving minute instructions how to cultivate and strengthen the voice.

Professors Waller, Noetling, Feree, and Curran, of the Bloomsburg Normal School arrived during the afternoon, and made brief addresses.

FRIDAY EVENING.

Prof. Marshall delivered his well known lecture, entitled, 'Yellowstone Park.' We will not attempt to give an epitome of the lecture, as we would fail to give it justice. It was copiously illustrated by means of the calcium light.

SATURDAY MORNING.

Miss Amelia Armstrong, J. S. Grimes, Mrs. I. E. Schoonover, Miss Sadie Spear and W. E. Smith were appointed as being elected a committee to examine applicants for permanent certificates.

Prof. Little concluded his instructions in drawing.

The committee on resolutions reported through its chairman, Mr. Buckingham, the following:

Resolved, That it is the duty of the teachers to read the best books accessible, that tend to make them more efficient in their work.

Resolved, That it is the duty of the teachers to attend the County Institute.

Resolved, That we consider it the duty of directors to grant the time to teachers who attend the County Institute.

Resolved, That the thanks of this Institute are due, and are hereby tendered, to Superintendent Snyder for the able manner in which he conducted this Institute, to the Trustees of the Orangeville Academy for the use of the building, to Prof. Canfield for his assistance, to Miss Achenbach and others for the excellent music furnished, to Miss Patridge, Prof. Little, Prof. Colgrove, Prof. Marshall and others for their good common sense and practical instructions.

Inasmuch as Miss Patridge has done double duty at the Institute, therefore,

Resolved, That she is entitled to a double portion of the gratitude of the teachers, not only for her general practical instructions, but also for the especial interest manifested in our behalf. Particularly do the ladies of the Institute thank her for her valuable hints on dress reform.

Resolved, That Superintendent Snyder has been, in our opinion, a faithful, conscientious, energetic, pains-taking officer, and that we regard his contemplated retirement from office with genuine regret and concern.

Resolved, That the minutes of this Institute be published in the county papers.

H. W. BUCKINGHAM, M. ELLA ANDREAS,
BENJ. P. VANATTA, AMELIA ARMSTRONG,
J. S. GRIMES,
Committee

The Superintendent closed the exercises by a spicy farewell address, giving some good advice to the teachers, and exhorting them to a faithful discharge of their onerous duties. The Institute then adjourned sine die.

Upon the whole, the Institute was a grand success, due to the skillful management and the indomitable zeal of the Superintendent and his efficient corps of co workers. The attendance large, all the districts in the county being represented with the exception of Conyngham township and the borough of Centralia.

Over a million of Prof. Guilmette's French Kidney Pads have been sold in France. Who will dare say they are a humbug?

A Cure at Last.—Specifics without number for the cure of Catarrh have been extensively advertised, and doubtless there is some virtue in all, but the evidence is overwhelming that Ely's Cream Balm goes more directly than any other to the seat of the disease, and though it is comparatively a new discovery, it has resulted in more cures within the range of our observation than all the others put together. Wilkesbarre, Pa., Union Leader Dec. 19, 1879.

We have sold Ely's Cream Balm for Catarrh for the past year; have never had a complaint but have received praises. It gives satisfaction to every one using it. Nat. Wolfe & Co., druggists, Wilkesbarre, Pa., Jan. 28, 1880.

RESCUED FROM DEATH.

The following statement of William J. Coughlin, of Somerville, Mass., is so remarkable that we beg to ask for it the attention of our readers. He says: "In the fall of 1876 I was taken with a Violent Bleeding of the Lungs followed by a severe cough. I soon began to lose my appetite and flesh. I was so weak at one time that I could not leave my bed. In the summer of 1877 I was admitted to the City Hospital. While there the doctors said I had a hole in my left lung as big as a half dollar. I expended over a hundred dollars in doctors and medicines. I was so far gone at one time a report went around I was dead. I gave up hope, but a friend told me of DR. WM. HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS. I laughed at my friends, thinking that my case was incurable, but I got a bottle to satisfy them, when to my surprise and gratification, I commenced to feel better. My hope, once dead, began to revive, and to-day I feel in better spirits than I have for three years.

"I write this hoping you will publish it so that every one afflicted with diseased lungs will be induced to take Dr. Wm. Hall's Balsam for the Lungs, and be convinced that CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED. I have taken two bottles and can positively say that it has done more good than all the other medicines I have taken since my sickness. My cough has almost entirely disappeared and I shall soon be able to go to work." Sold by druggists. Take Wm. Hall's Balsam only—beware of counterfeits. oct 15-1yeow

HOW TO GET almost Everything.

Do you know how to get in the easiest way and to best advantage what you want for dress and house-furnishing?

First, how: Write for a catalogue; see what you can learn from it about the things you want. If samples can be useful to you, ask for them and state your wants so plainly that exactly the right samples can be sent.

Second, where: The place where goods are kept in the greatest variety; where they are sold for what they really are in respect to quality; where prices are lowest; where most care is taken to serve customers acceptably; and where you have the right to return whatever is not satisfactory.

There—no matter where you are—if you make your wants known and avail yourself of your privileges, you will get the best things in the best way, promptly and without trouble or risk; sometimes by mail, sometimes by express, almost always at less cost for carriage than the money you save in the price.

Farm and Garden Notes.

Mr. Peter Henderson, of New York State, states in the Gardener's Monthly that he has discovered that mulching roses in pots to force flowers for the holidays, in January last, with common moss mixed with a good portion of bone dust, say one part bone dust to thirty of moss, has a wonderful effect in bringing forth early roses. In two weeks after the mulch was first applied a change was clearly to be seen, and by the end of May the plants had attained from four to six feet in height, "and though they had bloomed profusely during a period of nearly six months, were in the most perfect health and vigor." All other plants on which the mulch had been tried showed marked benefits.

We should be thankful for some reliable information about the pink water lily, which it is claimed will grow nowhere else than in the neighborhood of Cape Cod. Cannot some of our Boston cotemporaries tell us something about it? We have heard a great deal about their 'exclusiveness' but we don't believe it.

In England black walnut is in large demand, and agents of English manufacturers have lately been visiting Iowa, Indiana and Missouri for the purpose of buying all they could obtain. About twenty five years ago this wood was so little appreciated in the Western States that it was cut up with common woods into posts and rails for fencing purposes, and much was thus used. There is but little danger however, of the supply becoming exhausted. There are vast forests of it in some of the Southern States.

Some horses possess an immense amount of endurance. No doubt many of the ills which horseflesh is heir to are more frequently produced by over-feeding than from an insufficiency of food. An evidence of long continued service are a pair of horses owned by Joseph Fenstermacher, of Topton, Berks county, Pa., which have been used in ore teams for eighteen years and are still serviceable.

An immense quantity of tomatoes and other vegetables has been canned in New Jersey this season. At Campbell's canning establishment, Camden, as many as 300,000 cans of tomatoes and peas were thus put up during the past three months. Two hundred hands were employed to do the work. The demand for these goods is largely from the South.

The crops from Canada are reported this year to be satisfactory. While the yield of wheat is not so heavy as last year, other crops, particularly barley, oats, hay, roots and fruits were heavy. The potato crop of Prince Edward Island gives a generous return, and altogether the farmers of the Dominion are better suited pecuniarily than they were a year or two ago.

The hop crop of New York turns out to be a very superior one, enough not only to supply all over our consumption, but to have several thousand bales to spare. This is good news. Some years the crop is almost an entire failure, entailing great loss on the cultivators. Cooperstown seems to be about the headquarters of the crop in New York.

The "Pacific Rural Life" says thoroughbred stock in considerable numbers has been sent to Asia, the Sandwich Islands and Mexico from California. Shorthorns and Jerseys are favorite breeds in that State. In raising horses much progress is now being made, and many superior animals have been had there within a few years.

No family in China is said to be too poor to keep poultry. About every shanty struts a pert cock and a few hungry hens, which lead a precarious existence, and never become diseased from food. During winter they get barely enough food to sustain life.

The late arrival of two American steamers at Revel, Russia, created a decided sensation in that country. Owing to the high road charges grain is said to be imported from this country cheaper than it can be shipped from some of the agricultural districts of Russia to the seaboard.

Owing to the heavy apple crop the shipments of foreign ports this season promise to far exceed those of any former year. The other day a steamer took from Boston 10,673 barrels, one of the largest cargoes of the kind ever shipped from American port.

Advertising Cheats.

It has become so common to write the beginning of an elegant, interesting article and then run it into some advertisement that we avoid all such cheats and simply call attention to the merits of Hop Bitters in as plain honest terms as possible, to induce people to give them one trial, as no one who knows their value will use anything else.—Providence Advertiser.

The Virtues of Butter Milk.

Few people know the value of butter milk. A proper and constant use of buttermilk will entirely cure the constant craving for stimulants to which many persons, from long use, have habituated themselves. Have it handy, and when the appetite says whisky or other stimulant, drink half a cup of buttermilk; the craving desire will be satisfied, and the stomach will be much benefited and strengthened, instead of weakened. There are very many good effects from a free use of buttermilk. It alone will often cure sour stomach, and permanently. The lactic acid needed by many persons is supplied by buttermilk much more largely than by any other known food or beverage. One vital and important use of buttermilk is the prevention of valvular ossification of the valves of the heart from which, in this country, so many persons die, especially old persons. There are many other peculiar so-called heart diseases which lactic acid, if partaken freely prevents. The so-called fluttering or palpitation of the heart, consequent upon a disordered, dyspeptic stomach, can be entirely removed by a free use of buttermilk. There are many other unpleasant feelings thus cured, all of which have their seat in the stomach—melancholy, the blues, etc.

A Big Success.

"My wife had been ailing a long time with dyspepsia and nervousness and was in bed two years with a complication of disorders her physicians could not cure, when I was led by reading a circular at my door to try Parker's Ginger Tonic. Having been so often deceived by worthless mixtures, nothing but my wife's dangerous condition could have led us to make any more experiments. But it was a big success. Three bottles cured her at a cost of a dollar and fifty cents, and she is now as strong as any woman, and regularly does her household duties.—R. D., Buffalo. See other column. nov

Recently Prof. Huxle said that ninety nine men out of every hundred became simply obstructive after 60 years old, and were not flexible enough to yield to the advance of new ideas. The world, he thought, would be benefitted by any man who had taken part in science bestrangled after 60. This may be meant for Brother Ruskin, who lately wrote to Glasgow students that he loathed liberalism.

Success in Medicine.

Under this head we desire to say something in reference to Dr. Browning's medicines, which have been advertised for some time in this paper, and which have been tested by persons connected therewith with results so satisfactory that we do not hesitate to speak publicly in their favor. Dr. Browning's patients were first to discover that his prescriptions were unusually rapid and certain in their action, which soon created an extensive demand for them, and written labels soon gave way to printed ones, and hand power to steam power in their manufacture. Wherever his medicines have been tried their merits have made them so deservedly popular that his patients will take nothing that has not the signature of W. Champion Browning, M. D., upon it. Dr. Browning is a thorough chemist, also a graduate of the Jefferson Medical College of Philadelphia—as is shown by a diploma of that institution hanging in a conspicuous place in his elegant reception room. He attributes his success in the treatment of disease not alone to his medical knowledge, but to medicine and chemistry combined. His scientific research, both physiological and chemical, has been very extensive and necessarily expensive. His methods of producing disease artificially in the lower animals, are not only entirely original, but novel and interesting. Dr. Browning is very particular, both in his offices and circulars, to impress every one with the fact that his preparations are not cure-alls; the action of each preparation is confined to diseases which are closely and positively related. His "C. and C. Cordial" is for conditions resulting from a cold, and his "Tonic Alterative" is for diseases of the blood and conditions resulting from impurities of that vital fluid. Dr. Browning is proud of the brilliancy and purity of his preparations, which are secured by careful selection of drugs and extreme cleanliness, which is enforced in every department of his labratory

BROWN SOUP.—Take cold roast beef or fowl, cover it with cold water, let this simmer for two hours, then take out the meat and strain the liquid. Have chopped fine equal parts of celery root and cabbage; add to each quart of liquid one cupful, two tablespoonsful of pearl barley, one tablespoonful of chopped parsley, one small carrot cut fine, two small potatoes sliced thin, let this boil one-half hour, then add one well beaten egg and two tablespoonsful of sweet milk thickened with browned flour; make this into small dumplings and drop in. This should boil five minutes more. When ready to serve add one onion fried brown in butter, and tablespoonful of tomato catsup.

It is impossible to find a cough and cold medicine to compare favorably with Dr Browning's C. & C. Cordial. It is pleasant to the taste, searches out the affected parts, and silently but effectually accomplishes its mission. We advise any one troubled with a cough or cold to give it a trial. It will speedily help consumptives. Asthmatic troubles soon disappear, and the patient afflicted with that terrible complaint should at once procure a bottle. Price 50 cents. If your druggist does not sell it, send direct to Dr. Browning, 1117 Arch street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Oregon is the first State of the Union to boldly venture on the experiment of woman suffrage, a dispatch announcing that the Legislature of the State has just passed an amendment to that effect. Oregon, though not a young state—it came of age in 1878—is comparatively a new one. It is, or has been until recently, comparatively isolated from the tide of immigration, and in 1870 its males exceeded its females by more than 15,000, the figures being, males, 53,131; females 37,892. It is more then probable that this disparity still exists and that it has increased rather than diminished, which may or may not be the reason its legislators have looked with favor on woman suffrage. The latter cause, by the way, is making slow but steady progress. It prevails in ex tenso in Wyoming Territory and Utah and in a modified form in New York and Massachusetts, where women may vote for school officers, whereas in Pennsylvania, although the fact seems to have been forgotten, under our Constitution, adopted in 1873, women, while they may not vote themselves may be voted for for School directors to which the are eligible.

A miner had a wonderful ride in a tin pan at Colorado. Being at the top of a high mountain, and desiring to get to the bottom of the valley, he knew that a tedious and circuitous walk of fifteen miles was necessary by the ordinary route while the distance straight down the snow-covered incline was only three. He had such a pan as miners use in washing out gold. Squatting down in this, away he went, faster and faster, until the solder of the vehicle was melting by friction, and he was almost insensible from lack of breath. But the trip was quickly over, without any mishap, and the passenger now declares that he enjoyed it.

In the streets of Milan and Naples a song is now very popular in which is described the life and death of Pietro Bulbo, lately hanged in New York.

In Vicksburg, Natchez and other Mississippi towns commercial travelers are compelled to pay a license of $250 for a week or a portion of a week.

The production of hops in this country has increased yearly 5000 bales for the last twenty years.

MRS. LYDIA E. PINKHAM.
OF LYNN, MASS.

DISCOVERER OF

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND.

The Positive Cure

For all Female Complaints.

This preparation, as its name signifies, consists of Vegetable Properties that are harmless to the most delicate invalid. Upon one trial the merits of this Compound will be recognized, as relief is immediate; and when its use is continued, in ninety-nine cases in a hundred, a permanent cure is effected, as thousands will testify. On account of its proven merits, it is to-day recommended and prescribed by the best physicians in the country.

It will cure entirely the worst form of falling of the uterus, Leucorrhœa, irregular and painful Menstruation, all Ovarian Troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Floodings, all Displacements and the consequent spinal weakness, and is especially adapted to the Change of Life. It will dissolve and expel tumors from the uterus in an early stage of development. The tendency to cancerous humors there is checked very speedily by its use.

In fact it has proved to be the greatest and best remedy that has ever been discovered. It permeates every portion of the system, and gives new life and vigor. It removes faintness, flatulency, destroys all craving for stimulants, and relieves weakness of the stomach.

It cures Bloating, Headaches, Nervous Prostration, General Debility, Sleeplessness, Depression and Indigestion. That feeling of bearing down, causing pain, weight and backache, is always permanently cured by its use. It will at all times, and under all circumstances, act in harmony with the law that governs the female system.

For Kidney Complaints of either sex this compound is unsurpassed.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is prepared at 233 and 235 Western Avenue, Lynn, Mass. Price $1.00. Six bottles for $5.00. Sent by mail in the form of pills, also in the form of Lozenges, on receipt of price, $1.00, per box, for either. Mrs. PINKHAM freely answers all letters of inquiry. Send for pamphlet. Address as above. Mention this paper.

No family should be without LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S LIVER PILLS. They cure Constipation, Biliousness, and Torpidity of the Liver. 25 cents per box.

HELP Yourselves by making money when a golden chance is offered, thereby always keeping poverty from your door. Those who always take advantage of the good chances for making money that are offered, generally become wealthy, while those who do not improve such chances remain in poverty. We want many men, women, boys and girls to work for us right in their own localities. The business will pay more than ten times ordinary wages. We furnish an expensive outfit and all that you need, free. No one who engages fails to make money very rapidly. You can devote your whole time to the work, or only your spare moments. Full information and all that is needed sent free. Address STINSON & CO., Portland, Maine. oct. 15 '80-ly
